* The average values per 100 g of the product obtained by calculation are indicated (for culinary products from poultry meat and dishes containing them, taking into account the average weight of the semi-finished product from broiler chicken meat and laboratory research data). The variability for macrocomponents (proteins, fats, carbohydrates), taking into account the error of the determination method, is 20-52%, on average 24%, which is consistent with the data of the reference tables of the chemical composition and caloric content of Russian products (Ed. By Skurikhin I.M., Tutelyan V.A.) This is due to the biological variability of raw materials of plant and animal origin.

 for culinary products from poultry meat and dishes containing them, average values are indicated, taking into account the average weight of the semi-finished product from broiler chicken meat
